LOCATION MAP

The site is located in Somwar Peth; which is part of the mediavel centre of Pune city.

This area was settled and developed around 300 years ago and saw a gradual change in its use due to various reasons.

The development of Tulshibaug is closely linked to the cultural, economic, and political history of Pune and by extension that of India as well.

Its transition from a pleasure garden, to a temple complex, to a bazaar, and now a commercial district has evolved in parallel to the city.

Today it is densely populated with heavy traffic all around it and suffers from a low level of awareness of its heritage value.
